Our Lord Jesus Christ,
King of the Universe

We rejoice in the Feast of Jesus Christ, the King of the Universe. Today's Scriptures present Jesus the Shepherd-King. Like David, the ideal king of Israel, who was a shepherd before becoming a king, Jesus is the Good Shepherd who has laid down His life on the Cross for us, His sheep.

St. Paul in the second reading reminds us Jesus is the new "Adam" the new head of a "redeemed" human race. The Gospel presents our Shepherd-King as the merciful just Judge who will separate the sheep from the goats.

LECTORS! Please pick up your 2018 workbook for the coming liturgical year in the sacristy.

BRING IT HOME...

"Whatever you did for one of the least of my brothers of mine, you did for me." This verse, is one that we should all strive to remember and take to heart. It is a call to action, a call to serve our community and provide charitable actions to those in need. Jesus reminds us that our actions, or lack of them are important. As followers of Christ we should not overlook the needs of those around us. The Corporal Works of Mercy allow us to express our faith, and show it to others through our deeds. As we move into the Advent Season, and begin to prepare for Christmas, take a moment to remember those in need. This time of year the needs of others are great, but so are our opportunities to provide for these needs. How can you show your faith through your actions this holiday season.

The Lost and Found Box is located near the Handicapped Restroom in the Front Vestibule of Church.

Reflection

by Rev. Leonard N. Peterson

Some years ago the TV magazine "Sixty Minutes" did a piece on the financial disaster visited upon people who let their credit card debt pile up to an overwhelming degree. I remember specifically the lament of a young wife and mother who admitted that she forgot that a bill comes in the mail at the end of the month for all those who pay "with plastic", as the saying goes. That last was unforgettable.

If you have already perused the Readings for this weekend's Liturgy you likely know where I'm headed. Just as some people forget that there will be an accounting for our spending, so there will be one for our sinning.

Not the most pleasant of thoughts is it for Thanksgiving weekend? But sometimes there will be clashes between the Church, or Liturgical calendar and the one hanging in your kitchen or the one on your cell phone. Today in the Church could actually be subtitled "New Year's Eve." It is the last Sunday of the current liturgical year, and the Church wants us to be mindful of that stupendous day when this world will end. That day will feature, according to St. Paul, a general judgement of us all by the Supreme Judge, God Himself.

With these Readings, especially the Gospel from Matthew, the Church wants us to step back from all the things we're doing that have a way of absorbing all our energies, physical and spiritual. Then we forget that the main thing is still the main thing: our relationship with God. Our love and obedience to what He demands of us as our Creator.

The way Matthew describes the scene is powerful, because it presents a simple line of demarcation, namely service of others. That one line goes to the heart of the matter: "I say to you, what you did/did not do for others you did/did not do for me." All the selfishness and entitlement that our present culture urges us to bring to the bargaining table of life suddenly sounds like the ugly thing it is. Especially when just outside our scope of vision lie the needy of the world.

Just last Thursday we gathered with our families around the table groaning with goodies in the food department and prayed gratefully for that food and the countless blessings we enjoy as Americans, so on this Sunday of Christ the King we call to mind our need not to squander them. In addition, we can pray sincerely for those who have less than we do of this world's goods. And before we dare compose our Christmas list of what more we're wanting, we can resolve to use the coming Advent season as a time for giving to others.

Not just at the end of this short Advent month, but at the end of time there will be recorded next to our name a grand total of credit. And the Supreme Judge will smile.

1st Reading: Ezekiel 34:11-12, 15-17

God will be the Good Shepherd caring for the weak. He will also separate the bad from the good sheep as Judge.

2nd Reading: I Corinthians 15:20-26, 28

Christ is the new Adam, who restores what the old Adam lost. He will also destroy all the evil powers which have held us hostage.

Gospel: Matthew 25:31-46

This famous passage describes the General Judgement of all the nations at the end of the world. It is also the grand finale of the public ministry of Jesus as recorded by Matthew.
